Schedule III

Risk Disclosure Statement

IMPORTANT NOTICE TO CUSTOMERS: PLEASE READ THIS RISK DISCLOSURE STATEMENT CAREFULLY. THIS STATEMENT FORMS AN INTEGRAL PART OF THE BANK'S ACCOUNT MANDATE AND THE TERMS AND CONDITIONS GOVERNING THE ACCOUNT.

BY EXECUTING THE ACCOUNT MANDATE, I/WE, THE CUSTOMER, ACKNOWLEDGE THAT I/WE HAVE READ THIS RISK DISCLOSURE STATEMENT AND UNDERSTAND THE RISKS APPLICABLE TO THE BANK'S SERVICES.

The risk of loss in Securities dealing, including equity linked notes, options in or derivatives of any of them or in other trading or investment transactions, can be substantial. I/We, the Customer should therefore carefully consider whether such trading or investment whether directly by me/us or through you, the Bank, on a discretionary managed basis is suitable for me/us in light of my/our financial condition, my/our tolerance to risks and my/our investment experience. This statement cannot, of course, disclose all the risks and other significant aspects of the securities or debt instrument markets, or of other markets in which I/we may elect to trade or deal with in other arrangements with the Bank from time to time. Further detailed explanatory Risk Disclosure Statement and product specifications or prospectus or other offering document are readily available from the Bank at my/our request. I/We should therefore carefully study securities, and/or any relevant trading arrangements before I/we trade.

In considering whether to trade or invest, I/we should understand and be aware of the risks generally, and in particular should note the following:

32. Risk Disclosure Statement (Securities Trading)

- 32.1 I/We acknowledge that the price of Securities can and does fluctuate, and any individual Security may experience upwards or downwards movements, and may even become valueless. There is an inherent risk that losses may be incurred rather than profit made as a result of buying and selling Securities. I/We also acknowledge that there may be risks in leaving Securities in the Bank's safekeeping. For example, if the Bank is holding my/our Securities and it becomes insolvent, I/we may experience significant delay in recovering the Securities. These are risks that I/we am/are prepared to accept.
- 32.2 I/We acknowledge that the Internet, mobile phone or other access channel, due to unpredictable traffic congestion and other reasons, is an inherently unreliable medium of communication and that such unreliability is beyond the control of the Bank. I/We further acknowledge that, as a result of such unreliability, there may be time lag or delays in the transmission of data and receipt of Instructions and other information and that this may result in delays in the execution of Instruction and/or execution of Instruction at prices different from those prevailing at the time of the Instruction and after it has been given.

33. Risk Disclosure Statement (GEM)

- 33.1 I/We acknowledge that the price of Securities traded on GEM of the Stock Exchange ("GEM") can and does fluctuate, and any individual Security may experience upwards or downwards movements, and may even become valueless. There is an inherent risk that losses may be incurred rather than profit made as a result of buying and selling Securities traded on GEM. I/ We also acknowledge that there may be risks in leaving Securities in the Bank's safekeeping. For example, if the Bank are holding my/our Securities and it becomes insolvent, I/we may experience significant delay in recovering the Securities. These are risks that I/we am/are prepared to accept.
- 33.2 I/We understand that GEM has been established as a market designed to accommodate companies to which a high investment risk may be attached. In particular, I/we understand that companies may list on GEM with neither a track record of profitability nor any obligation to forecast future profitability. I/We appreciate that there may be risks arising out of the emerging nature of companies listed on GEM and the business sectors or countries in which the companies operate.
- 33.3 I/We am/are aware of the potential risks of investing in such companies and understand that I/we should make the decision to invest only after due and careful consideration. I/We understand the greater risk profile and other characteristics of GEM mean that it is a market more suitable for professional and other sophisticated investors.
- 33.4 Given the emerging nature of companies listed on GEM, I/we understand there is a risk that Securities traded in GEM may be susceptible to higher market volatility compared to Securities traded on the Main Board and no assurance is given that there will be a liquid market in the Securities traded on GEM.

- 33.5 I/We further understand that the principal means of information dissemination on GEM is publication on the Internet website operated by the Stock Exchange. Companies listed on GEM are not generally required to issue paid announcements in gazetted newspapers. Accordingly, I/we acknowledge that I/we need to have access to up-to-date information on GEM-listed companies as published on the GEM website.
- 33.6 I/We acknowledge that this risk disclosure statement does not purport to disclose all the risks and other significant aspects of GEM. I/We understand that I/we should undertake my/our own research and study on the trading of Securities on GEM before commencing any trading activities.
- 33.7 I/We understand that I/we should seek independent professional advice if I/we am/are uncertain of or have not understood any aspect of this Risk Disclosure Statement or the nature and risks involved in trading of Securities on GEM.
- 33.8 I/We understand that the signing of this Risk Disclosure Statement is mandatory under the Rules of the Stock Exchange. I/We understand that the Bank will not be able to effect my/our Instructions to deal in Securities on GEM if this statement is not signed and acknowledged by me/us.

34. Risk Disclosure Statement (NASDAQ-AMEX Securities at The Stock Exchange of Hong Kong Limited)

The Securities under the Nasdaq-Amex Pilot Program (PP) are aimed at sophisticated investors. I/We should consult my/our dealer and become familiarized with the PP before trading in the PP Securities. I/We should be aware that the PP securities are not regulated as a primary or secondary listing on the Main Board or GEM of The Stock Exchange of Hong Kong Limited.

35. Risk Disclosure Statement (Unit Trust and Nominees Services)

- 35.1 I/We acknowledge that the price of Units in any Investment Schemes may go down as well as up and under certain conditions it can become difficult or impossible to redeem the Unit and the Unit may even become valueless. There is an inherent risk that losses may be incurred rather than profit made as a result of buying and selling Units in any Investment Schemes. I/We also acknowledge that there may be risks in leaving Units in the Bank's safekeeping. For example, if the Bank is holding my/our Units and it becomes insolvent, I/we may experience significant delay in recovering the Units. These are risks that I/we am/are prepared to accept.
- 35.2 I/We acknowledge that the Internet, mobile phone or other access channel, due to unpredictable traffic congestion and other reasons, is an inherently unreliable medium of communication and that such reliability is beyond the control of the Bank. I/We further acknowledge that, as a result of such unreliability, there may be time lag or delays in the transmission of data and receipt of Instructions and other information and that this may result in delays in the execution of Instructions and/or execution of Instructions at prices different from those prevailing at the time of the Instruction and after it has been given.

36. Risk Disclosure Statement (Exchange Traded Derivative Products and/or Structured Products)

A. General risks of Derivative Products and/or Structured Products traded in Exchange

Issuer default risk: In the event a structured product issuer becomes insolvent and defaults on its listed securities, I/we will be considered as unsecured creditors and will have no preferential claims to any assets held by the issuer. I/We should therefore pay close attention to the financial strength and credit worthiness of structured product issuers.

Uncollateralised product risk: Uncollateralised structured products are not asset backed. In the event of issuer becomes insolvent or bankrupt, I/we can lose my/our entire investment. I/We should read the listing documents to determine if a product is uncollateralised.

Gearing risk: Structured products such as derivative warrants and callable bull/bear contracts are leveraged and can change in value rapidly according to the gearing ratio relative to the underlying assets. I/We should be aware that the value of a structured product may fall to zero resulting in a total loss of the initial investment.

Expiry considerations: Structured products have an expiry date after which the issue may become worthless. I/We should be aware of the expiry time horizon and choose a product with an appropriate lifespan for my/our trading strategy.

Extraordinary price movements: The price of a structured product may not match its theoretical price due to outside influences such as market supply and demand factors. As a result, actual traded prices can be higher or lower than the theoretical price.

Foreign exchange risk: I/We trading structured products with underlying assets not denominated in Hong Kong dollars are also exposed to exchange rate risk. Currency rate fluctuations can adversely affect the underlying asset value, also affecting the structured product price.

Liquidity risk: The Exchange requires all structured product issuers to appoint a liquidity provider for each individual issue. The role of liquidity providers is to provide two way quotes to facilitate trading of their products. In the event that a liquidity provider defaults or ceases to fulfill its role, I/we may not be able to buy or sell the product until a new liquidity provider has been assigned.

B. Additional risks of Derivative Products and/or Structured Products traded in Exchange

B(1) Equity derivatives traded in the Exchange

Derivative Warrants

Exchange traded derivative warrants fall under the category of derivative investment instruments or structured products. They have a life of six months to five years. The underlying assets of derivative warrants include ordinary shares, market indices, currencies and baskets of shares. Derivative warrants are issued by a third party, generally an investment bank, independent of the issuer of the underlying assets. The issuer of derivative warrants may not be the issuer of the underlying assets but should hold or have a right to hold the underlying assets.

Exchange traded derivative warrants can be linked to a single security or a basket of securities, stock indices, currencies, commodities or futures contracts (like crude oil futures). Almost all derivative warrants currently traded in Hong Kong are cash-settled. Warrants linked to a basket of securities, stock indices or securities listed in other jurisdictions will always be settled by cash. Similar to other securities, I/we can buy or sell derivative warrants anytime during the securities market's trading hours.

When a physically settled call derivative warrant on a single stock is exercised, the warrant holder will receive the underlying stock from the issuer. Unlike equity warrants, no new shares will be issued.

Risks involved in trading Derivative Warrants

Issuer Risk: Derivative Warrant holders are unsecured creditors of the issuer and have no preferential claim to any assets an issuer may hold.

Gearing Risk: Although derivative warrants often cost less than the price of the underlying assets, a derivative warrant may change in value to a much greater extent than the underlying assets. Although potential return on derivative warrants may be higher than that on the underlying assets, it should be noted that in the worst case the value of derivative warrants may fall to zero and holders may lose their entire investment amount.

Limited Life: Unlike stocks, derivative warrants have an expiry date and therefore a limited life. Unless the derivative warrants are in-the-money, they become worthless at expiration.

Time Decay: So long as other factors remain unchanged, the value of derivative warrants will decrease over time. Therefore, derivative warrants should never be viewed as products that are bought and held as long term investments.

Market Forces: In addition to the basic factors that determine the theoretical price of a derivative warrant, derivative warrant prices are also affected by the demand for and supply of the derivative warrants. This is particularly the case when a derivative warrant issue is almost sold out and when there are further issues of an existing derivative warrant.

Turnover: High turnover should not be regarded as an indication that a derivative warrant's price will go up. The price of a derivative warrant is affected by a number of factors in addition to market forces, such as the price of the underlying assets and its volatility, the time remaining to expiry, interest rates and the expected dividend on the underlying assets.

Volatility: Prices of derivative warrants can increase or decrease in line with the implied volatility of underlying asset price. I/We should be aware of the underlying asset volatility.

Obligation of liquidity providers: The listing document lists the exact obligations of the liquidity provider. In normal circumstances, liquidity providers should provide liquidity for derivative warrant issues through continuous quotes or in response to quote requests from five minutes after the market opens until the market closes. The liquidity provider should provide liquidity for at least a certain number of board lots of the derivative warrant. An issuer must specify the maximum spread between the bid and offer prices for its derivative warrants in the listing document. Under the quote request system, I/we may request a quote from the liquidity provider. In the event that a liquidity provider defaults or ceases to fulfill its role, I/we may not be able to buy or sell the product until a new liquidity provider has been assigned.

Callable Bull/Bear Contracts (“CBBC”)

Exchange traded CBBC are a type of structured product that tracks the performance of an underlying asset without requiring me/us to pay the full price required to own the actual asset. They are issued either as Bull or Bear contracts with a fixed expiry date, allowing me/us to take bullish or bearish positions on the underlying asset. CBBC are issued by a third party, usually an investment bank, independent of Exchange and of the underlying asset. Similar to other securities, I/we can buy or sell CBBC anytime during the securities market’s trading hours.

Exchange traded CBBC are issued with the condition that during their lifespan they will be called by the issuers when the price of the underlying asset reaches a level (known as the “Call Price”) specified in the listing document. If the Call Price is reached before expiry, the CBBC will expire early and the trading of that CBBC will be terminated immediately. The specified expiry date from the listing document will no longer be valid.

For Bull contracts, the Call Price must be either equal to or above the Strike Price. For Bear contracts, the Call Price must be equal to or below the Strike Price. If the underlying asset’s price reaches the Call Price at any time prior to expiry, the CBBC will expire early. The issuer must call the CBBC and trading of the CBBC will be terminated immediately. Such an event is referred to as a Mandatory Call Event (MCE).

CBBC may be issued with a lifespan of 3 months to 5 years and are settled in cash only. There are two categories of CBBC, namely Category N CBBC and Category R CBBC.

i) A Category N CBBC refers to a CBBC where its Call Price is equal to its Strike Price, and the CBBC holder will not receive any cash payment once the price of the underlying asset reaches or goes beyond the Call Price.

ii) A Category R CBBC refers to a CBBC where its Call Price is different from its Strike Price, and the CBBC holder may receive a small amount of cash payment (called “Residual Value”) upon the occurrence of an MCE but in the worst case, no residual value will be paid.

Risk involved in trading CBBC

Mandatory call: CBBC are not suitable for all types of investors and I/we should consider my/our risk appetite prior to trading. In any case, I/we should not trade in CBBC unless I/we understand the nature of the product and am/are prepared to lose the total amount invested since a CBBC will be called by the issuer when the price of the underlying asset hits the Call Price and trading in that CBBC will expire early. Payoff for Category N CBBC will be zero when they expire early. When Category R CBBC expire early the holder may receive a small amount of Residual Value payment, but there may be no Residual Value payment in adverse situations. The Bank may charge its customers a service fee for the collection of the Residual Value payment from the respective issuers.

In general, the larger the buffer between the Call Price and the Spot Price of the underlying asset, the lower the probability of the CBBC being called since the underlying asset of that CBBC would have to experience a larger movement in the price before the CBBC will be called. However at the same time, the larger the buffer, the lower the leverage effect will be. Once the CBBC is called, even though the underlying asset may bounce back in the right direction, the CBBC which has been called will not be revived and I/we will not be able to profit from the bounce-back.

Besides, the MCE of a CBBC with overseas assets as underlying may be triggered outside the Exchange’s trading hours.

Gearing effects: Since a CBBC is a leveraged product, the percentage change in the price of a CBBC is greater compared with that of the underlying asset. I/We may suffer higher losses in percentage terms if I/we expect the price of the underlying asset to move one way but it moves in the opposite direction.

Limited life: A CBBC has a limited life, as denoted by the fixed expiry date, with a lifespan of 3 months to 5 years. The life of a CBBC may be shorter if called before the fixed expiry date. The price of a CBBC fluctuates with the changes in the price of the underlying asset from time to time and may become worthless after expiry and in certain cases, even before the normal expiry if the CBBC has been called early.

Movement with underlying asset's price: Although the price of a CBBC tends to follow closely the price of its underlying asset, in some situations it may not (i.e. delta may not always be close to one). Prices of CBBC are affected by a number of factors, including its own demand and supply, funding costs and time to expiry. Moreover, the delta for a particular CBBC may not always be close to one, in particular when the price of the underlying asset is close to the Call Price.

Liquidity: Although CBBC have liquidity providers, there is no guarantee that I/we will be able to buy/sell CBBC at my/our target prices any time I/we wish. In the event that a liquidity provider defaults or ceases to fulfill its role, I/we may not be able to buy or sell the product until a new liquidity provider has been assigned.

Funding costs: The issue price of a CBBC includes funding cost and issuers are required to specify the formula for calculating the funding costs of their CBBC at launch in the listing documents. The funding cost of a CBBC includes the issuer's financing/stock borrowing costs after adjustment for expected ordinary dividends of the shares (if the underlying assets are dividend-paying shares) and the issuer's profit margin. These items fluctuate from time to time, therefore the funding costs are not fixed throughout the tenure of the contracts. In general, the longer the duration of the CBBC, the higher the funding costs. The funding costs decline over time as the CBBC moves towards expiry. I/We am/are advised to compare the funding costs of different issuers of CBBC with similar underlying assets and features.

When a CBBC is called, the CBBC holders (investors- e.g. I/we) will lose the funding cost for the full period since the funding cost is built into the CBBC price upfront at launch even though with the MCE, the actual period of funding for the CBBC turns out to be shorter.

In any case, I/we should note that the funding costs of a CBBC after launch may vary during its life and the Liquidity Provider is not obliged to provide a quote for the CBBC based on the theoretical calculation of the funding costs for that CBBC at launch.

Trading of CBBC close to Call Price: When the underlying asset is trading close to the Call Price, the price of a CBBC may be more volatile with wider spreads and uncertain liquidity. CBBC may be called at any time and trading will terminate as a result.

However, the trade inputted by me/us may still be executed and confirmed by me/us after the MCE since there may be some time lapse between the MCE time and suspension of the CBBC trading. Any trades executed after the MCE (i.e. Post MCE Trades) will not be recognized and will be cancelled. Therefore, I/we should be aware of the risk and ought to apply special caution when the CBBC is trading close to the Call Price.

Issuers will announce the exact call time within 1 hour after the trigger of MCE, and the Exchange will also send the list of Post MCE Trades to the Bank, and the Bank will inform the customers accordingly.

CBBC with overseas underlying asset: I/We trading CBBC with overseas underlying assets am/are exposed to an exchange rate risk as the price and cash settlement amount of the CBBC are converted from a foreign currency into Hong Kong dollars. Exchange rates between currencies are determined by forces of supply and demand in the foreign exchange markets which are affected by various factors.

Besides, CBBC issued on overseas underlying assets may be called outside the Exchange's trading hours. In such case, the CBBC will be terminated from trading on Exchange in the next trading session or soon after the issuer has notified Exchange about the occurrence of the MCE. There will be no automatic suspension of the CBBC trading.

B(2) Exchange Traded Funds("ETFs") and Future-based ETFs traded in the Exchange

ETFs are passively managed and open-ended funds. All listed ETFs on the Exchange securities market are authorized by the Securities and Futures Commission as collective investment schemes.

Similar to other securities, I/we can buy or sell ETFs anytime during the securities market's trading hours.

ETFs can be broadly grouped into three types:

Physical ETFs (i.e. traditional or in-specie ETFs)

Many of these ETFs directly buy all the assets needed to replicate the composition and weighting of their benchmark (e.g. constituents of a stock index). However, some only buy a portion of the assets needed to replicate the benchmark or assets which have a high degree of correlation with the underlying benchmark but are not part of it.

Some physical ETFs with underlying equity-based indices may also invest partially in futures and options contracts. Lending the shares they own is another strategy used by some physical ETFs. I/We should read the ETF prospectus carefully to ensure I/we understand how the fund operates.

Synthetic ETFs

These ETFs do not buy the assets in their benchmark. Instead, they typically invest in financial derivative instruments to replicate the benchmark's performance. The ETFs are required to have collateral when investing in derivatives (details of the net and gross counterparty exposure and types and composition of the collateral are published on the ETF's website). An ETF's net risk exposure to any single counterparty (i.e. net of the value of any collateral provided) cannot be more than 10 per cent of its Net Asset Value ("NAV"). I/We should read the ETF prospectus carefully to ensure I/we understand how the fund operates.

Futures-based ETFs

Futures-based ETFs are passively-managed index funds traded on an exchange which aim to replicate the performance of an underlying index by investing in futures contracts.

Excess return index and total return index

A futures-based ETF may track a spot market index or a futures index. Typically, a futures index tracked by a futures-based ETF is either an excess return index or a total return index.

- An excess return index measures the changes in the prices of the underlying futures contracts during the period that they are held by the ETF as adjusted by, the gain or loss incurred from rolling the futures contracts as they approach maturity.
- A total return index measures the changes in prices of the futures contracts and the gain or loss incurred from rolling the futures contracts, as well as the notional interest earnings from the ETF's cash holding and margin deposits based on various assumptions.

Benefits and risks of investing in futures-based ETFs

As one of the different types of ETFs, futures-based ETFs have the key benefits of a typical ETF, such as easy to trade, diversified, transparent and cost-effective. At the same time, it also benefits from the use of futures contracts in gaining exposure to a wide range of underlying assets including commodities (such as precious metals and other physical commodities), fixed income securities and equities. However, investing in futures-based ETFs is subject to common risks of ETFs as well as relevant risks involved in futures funds.

Risk involved in trading ETFs

Market risk: ETFs are typically designed to track the performance of certain indices, market sectors, or groups of assets such as stocks, bonds, or commodities. ETF managers may use different strategies to achieve this goal, but in general they do not have the discretion to take defensive positions in declining markets. I/We must be prepared to bear the risk of loss and volatility associated with the underlying index/assets.

Tracking errors: Tracking errors refer to the disparity in performance between an ETF and its underlying index/assets. Tracking errors can arise due to factors such as the impact of transaction fees and expenses incurred to the ETF, changes in composition of the underlying index/assets, and the ETF manager's replication strategy. (The common replication strategies include full replication/representative sampling and synthetic replication which are discussed in more details below.)

Trading at discount or premium: An ETF may be traded at a discount or premium to its NAV. This price discrepancy is caused by supply and demand factors, and may be particularly likely to emerge during periods of high market volatility and uncertainty. This phenomenon may also be observed for ETFs tracking specific markets or sectors that are subject to direct investment restrictions.

Foreign exchange risk: I/We trading ETFs with underlying assets not denominated in Hong Kong dollars are also exposed to exchange rate risk. Currency rate fluctuations can adversely affect the underlying asset value, also affecting the ETF price.

Liquidity risk: Securities Market Makers (“SMMs”) are Exchange Participants that provide liquidity to facilitate trading in ETFs. Although most ETFs are supported by one or more SMMs, there is no assurance that active trading will be maintained. In the event that the SMMs default or cease to fulfill their role, I/we may not be able to buy or sell the product.

Specific risk involved in trading Futures-based ETFs

(I) Risk of rolling futures contracts: Futures contracts are binding agreements that are made through futures exchanges to buy or sell the underlying assets at a specified time in the future. “Rollover” occurs when an existing futures contract is about to expire and is replaced with another futures contract representing the same underlying but with a later expiration date. When rolling futures contracts forward (ie. selling near-term futures contracts and then buying longer-term futures contracts) in a situation where the prices of the longer-term futures contract are higher than that of the expiring current-month futures contract, a loss from rolling (ie. a negative roll yield) may occur. Under such circumstances, the proceeds from selling the near-term futures contracts will not be sufficient to purchase the same number of futures contracts with a later expiration date which has a higher price. This may adversely affect the NAV of the futures-based ETF.

(II) Risk of statutory restrictions on number of futures contracts being held: There is a statutory position limit restricting the holding of futures contracts traded on the recognized exchange company to no more than a specific number of such futures contracts. If the holding of such futures contracts of a futures-based ETF grows to the limit, this may prevent the creation of units of the ETF due to the inability to acquire further futures contracts. This may lead to differences between the trading price and the NAV of the ETF units listed on the exchange.

(III) Key Risks involved in futures and options funds:

(a) Futures contracts/options risk

Basis risk: The prices of futures contracts/options may not always go in line with/be perfectly correlated to the value of the underlying assets in the spot markets. For example, an increase in the spot price of the underlying asset may not cause the NAV of the futures and options fund to rise by the same magnitude. In fact, the NAV of the futures and options fund may not change at all or may even fall.

Volatility risk: With substantial investment in futures contracts and options, the funds’ prices may be subject to the risk of very volatile price movements of futures contracts and options. Futures contracts/options price movements may be caused by other factors such as changes in government policies, supply and demand, changes in interest rates and economic conditions. Futures contracts/options’ prices are highly volatile, and so are prices of the futures and options funds. Furthermore, many futures and options funds may invest in futures contracts/options with underlying asset classes such as commodities and foreign currencies which are generally more volatile. Besides, some futures exchanges may impose limits on daily futures price movement. In this case, even if a futures and options fund tries to close out its futures position to limit loss, the orders may not be executed due to such limits.

Margin risk & liquidity risk: If the market moves against the futures position, the futures and options funds may be required to pay additional margins, to maintain the trading positions on short notice. The fund may need to liquidate its assets at unfavorable prices in order to meet these margin calls and suffer substantial losses. Some futures and options funds can only be redeemed at limited intervals (e.g. monthly). If you invest in such a fund, you may not be able to cash in on your investment at your desired price or when you are in need of cash.

(b) Leverage risk:

Trading of futures contracts and options may carry a high degree of risk. The amount of initial margin/premium for entering into futures contracts/options is small relative to the value of futures contracts/options so that transactions are leveraged. In this way, a small change in contracts prices may result in magnified profit or loss, depending on the extent of leverage employed by the funds. A futures and options fund may or may not be leveraged. Although a futures and options fund may not invest all of its assets in futures contracts/options, where a futures and options fund is leveraged, the fund may lose all of its assets in its entirety due to the leverage effect of futures contracts/options. You should pay attention to the leverage level of a futures and options fund in which you invest, as well as the attendant risks.

(c) Model risk

The performance of futures and options fund depends mainly on success of its investment strategy, which is generally model-based. However, the use of model does not guarantee positive performance and any unexpected changes in market could hurt the model's performance. Moreover, it is not guaranteed that the model can be fully executed in an accurate and timely fashion.

(d) Performance fee risk

The manager of a futures and options fund may charge a performance fee, which is payable to the manager annually if a pre-determined net appreciation of the fund's NAV is achieved. As the performance fee usually accrues on a daily basis and if payable, is deducted from the fund's net assets value on a daily basis, this gives rise to the risk that an investor redeeming his/her units may still need to bear a performance fee in respect of those units, even though a loss in the investment capital has been suffered by such redeeming investor.

(e) Counterparty risk

When a futures and options fund invests in options or other derivative instruments that are traded over-the-counter, the fund will be subject to the risk of default of its counterparties in performing any of their obligations. It may result in losses to the fund.

Counterparty risk involved in ETFs with different replication strategies:-

(a) Full replication and representative sampling strategies

An ETF using a full replication strategy generally aims to invest in all constituent stocks/assets in the same weightings as its benchmark. ETFs adopting a representative sampling strategy will invest in some, but not all of the relevant constituent stocks/assets. For ETFs that invest directly in the underlying assets rather than through synthetic instruments issued by third parties, counterparty risk tends to be less of concern.

(b) Synthetic replication strategies

ETFs utilizing a synthetic replication strategy use swaps or other derivative instruments to gain exposure to a benchmark. Currently, synthetic replication ETFs can be further categorized into two forms:

i) Swap-based ETFs

Total return swaps allow ETF managers to replicate the benchmark performance of ETFs without purchasing the underlying assets.

Swap-based ETFs are exposed to counterparty risk of the swap dealers and may suffer losses if such dealers default or fail to honor their contractual commitments.

ii) Derivative embedded ETFs

ETF managers may also use other derivative instruments to synthetically replicate the economic benefit of the relevant benchmark. The derivative instruments may be issued by one or multiple issuers.

Derivative embedded ETFs are subject to counterparty risk of the derivative instruments' issuers and may suffer losses if such issuers default or fail to honor their contractual commitments.

Even where collateral is obtained by an ETF, it is subject to the collateral provider fulfilling its obligations. There is a further risk that when the right against the collateral is exercised, the market value of the collateral could be substantially less than the amount secured resulting in significant loss to the ETF.

B(3) Listed Equity Linked Instruments (“ELI”)

Exchange traded ELI are structured products which are marketed to retail and institutional investors who want to earn a higher interest rate than the rate on an ordinary time deposit and accept the risk of repayment in the form of the underlying shares or losing some or all of their investment. Similar to other securities, I/we can buy or sell exchange traded ELI anytime during the securities market’s trading hours.

When I/we purchase an ELI, I/we am/are indirectly writing an option on the underlying shares. If the market moves as I/we expected, I/we earn a fixed return from my/our investment which is derived mainly from the premium received on writing the option. If the market moves against my/our view, I/we may lose some or all of my/our investment or receive shares worth less than the initial investment.

Risk involved in trading ELI

Exposure to equity market: I/We am/are exposed to price movements in the underlying security and the stock market, the impact of dividends and corporate actions and counterparty risks. I/We must also be prepared to accept the risk of receiving the underlying shares or a payment less than my/our original investment.

Possibilities of losing investment: I/We may lose part or all of my/our investment if the price of the underlying security moves against my/our investment view.

Price adjustment: I/We should note that any dividend payment on the underlying security may affect its price and the payback of the ELI at expiry due to ex-dividend pricing. I/We should also note that issuers may make adjustments to the ELI due to corporate actions on the underlying security.

Interest rates: While most ELI offer a yield that is potentially higher than the interest on fixed deposits and traditional bonds, the return on investment is limited to the potential yield of the ELI.

Potential yield: There are fees and charges related to the purchase and sale of ELI and payment / delivery at expiry. The potential yields disseminated by Exchange have not taken fees and charges into consideration.

Obligation of liquidity providers: Obligations of liquidity providers for an ELI are specified in the listing document, including, among other things: (1) circumstances under which liquidity will and will not be provided; (2) the minimum quantity of the ELI (at least 10 board lots) for which liquidity is provided; and (3) the maximum bid/ask spread per quote. In the event that a liquidity provider defaults or ceases to fulfill its role, I/we may not be able to buy or sell the product until a new liquidity provider has been assigned.

B(4) Leveraged and Inverse Product (“L&I Products”) traded in the Exchange

L&I Products are issued in the form of Exchange traded Funds (“ETFs”) as a type of collective investment schemes but they are in fact derivative products.

Leveraged Products typically aim to deliver a daily return equivalent to a multiple of the underlying index return that they track. Inverse Products typically aim to deliver the opposite of the daily return of the underlying index that they track. In overseas markets, they are commonly known as Leveraged and/or Inverse ETFs.

To produce the specified leveraged or inverse return, L&I Products have to rebalance their portfolios, typically on a daily basis. As such, they do not share the buy-to-hold characteristics of conventional ETFs. Investors should understand how the performance of L&I Products is likely to be affected when they are held for more than one trading day and its compounding effect. They should be aware that any small variation in the underlying index return may have a large effect on the value of the product you hold.

Investors should note the following salient features about L&I Products:

- It is not advisable to hold L&I Products for longer than the rebalancing interval, typically one day;
- L&I Products are designed as a trading tool for short-term market timing or hedging purposes, and are not intended for long term investment;

- L&I Products are only suitable for sophisticated trading-oriented investors who constantly monitor the performance of their holdings on a daily basis; and –
- the performance of L&I Products, when held overnight, may deviate from the underlying indices.

The risk of loss in trading in L&I Products is substantial. In particular, they are not suitable for investors who are unfamiliar with the features and risks of L&I Products, as they are designed for daily investment results, and/or investors who are looking for a long-term investment and cannot actively monitor their holdings.

Therefore, L&I Products are normally not suitable for many members of the public who wish to invest in collective investment schemes or ETFs as a low risk exchange-listed product in order to diversify their investment risks. The regulatory authorities have, taking into account their special risk profile, prohibited and/or discouraged the use of margin finance for investment in L&I Products. Investors must carefully consider whether trading is appropriate for you in light of your experience, objectives, financial resources and other relevant circumstances.

Whilst they are listed, there is no assurance that a liquid market always exists for the L&I Products concerned. A higher liquidity risk is involved if the product involves derivatives which do not have an active secondary market. Wider bid-offer spreads in the price of the products may result in losses. Therefore, they can be more difficult and costly to unwind early, when the instruments provide access to a restricted market where liquidity is limited.

There may be disparity between the performance of the L&I Product concerned and the performance of the underlying indices due to, for instance, failure of the tracking strategy, currency differences, fees and expenses.

L&I Products may currently be traded, cleared and settled in Hong Kong dollars, Renminbi and/or US dollars. Investors trading with underlying assets not denominated in Hong Kong dollars are also exposed to exchange rate risk. Currency rate fluctuations can adversely affect the underlying asset value, also affecting the product price.

Like ETFs, the risk of L&I Products can include counterparty risk, market risk, tracking errors, trading at discount or premium, and liquidity risk.

The specific risks presented by L&I Products necessarily depend upon the terms of the issued product and your circumstances. In general, however, they all involve some combination of market risk, credit risk, funding risk, operational risk, risk of rebalancing activities and intraday investment risk.

1. Market risk is the risk that the value of a transaction will be adversely affected by fluctuations in the level or volatility of or correlation or relationship between one or more market prices, rates or indices or other market factors or by illiquidity in the market for the relevant transaction or in a related market.
2. Credit risk is the risk that a counterparty will fail to perform its payment or other obligations when due.
3. Funding risk is the risk that, as a result of mismatches or delays in the timing of cash flows due from or to the counterparties in the relevant transaction in question or related hedging, trading, collateral or other transactions, the parties or a party to the relevant transactions will not have adequate cash available to fund current obligations.
4. Operational risk is the risk of loss arising from inadequacies in or failures of the issuer's and/or your internal systems and controls for monitoring and quantifying the risks and contractual obligations associated with the transaction in question, for recording and valuing the portfolio and related transactions, or for detecting human error, systems failure or management failure.
5. Risk of rebalancing activities: There is no assurance that L&I Products can rebalance their portfolios on a daily basis to achieve their investment objectives. Market disruption, regulatory restrictions or extreme market volatility may adversely affect the rebalancing activities.
6. Intraday investment risk: Leverage factor of L&I Products may change during a trading day when the market moves but it will not be rebalanced until day end. The L&I Product's return during a trading day may be greater or less than the leveraged/opposite return of the underlying index.

Although L&I Products are listed as ETFs, the Hong Kong Stock Exchange does not endorse any product or bear any responsibility and/or liability for any of their existence or performance.

Unconventional return pattern (for inverse products only): Inverse products aim to deliver a daily return that is a multiple of the opposite of the underlying index return. If the value of the underlying index increases for extended periods, or where the exchange rate of the underlying index denominated in a currency other than the inverse product's base currency rises for an extended period, inverse products can lose most or all of their value.

Inverse products vs short selling (for inverse products only): Investing in inverse products is different from taking a short position. Because of rebalancing, the performance of inverse products may deviate from a short position in particular in a volatile market with frequent directional swings.

You should therefore study and understand L&I Products before you trade and carefully consider whether such trading is suitable in the light of your own financial position and investment objectives.

This brief statement does not disclose all of the risks and other significant aspects of trading in L&I Products. In light of the risks, you should undertake such transactions only if you understand the nature of the contracts (and contractual relationships) into which you are entering and the extent of your exposure to risk. You should not construe this generic disclosure statement as business, legal, tax or accounting advice or as modifying applicable law. You should consult your own business, legal, tax and accounting advisers with respect to proposed L&I Product transactions and you should refrain from entering into any transaction unless you have fully understood the terms and risks of the transaction, including the extent of your potential risk of loss.

The information in relation to this Clause 36 "Risk Disclosure Statement – Exchange Traded Derivative Products and/or Structured Products" is quoted from the website of Hong Kong Exchange and Clearing Limited ("HKEx"). For further information, please refer to the website of HKEx (<http://www.hkex.com.hk/eng/index.htm>), Securities and Futures Commission (<https://www.sfc.hk/web/EN/index.html>) and contact the Macau Monetary Authority (<https://www.amcm.gov.mo/pt/?pIndex.htm>).

37. Risk of Trading Options

The risk of loss in trading options is substantial in some circumstances, I/we may sustain losses in excess of my/our initial margin funds. Placing contingent orders, such as "stop-loss" or "stop-limit" orders, will not necessarily avoid loss. Market conditions may make it impossible to execute such orders. I/We may be called upon at short notice to deposit additional margin funds. If the required liable funds are not provided within the prescribed time, my/our position may be liquidated. I/We will remain liable for any resulting deficit in my/our Account. I/We should therefore study and understand options before I/we trade and carefully consider whether such trading is suitable in the light of my/our own financial position and investment objectives. If I/we trade options, I/we should understand the exercise and expiration procedures and my/our rights and obligations upon exercise or expiry.

38. Risk of Client Assets Received or Held Outside Hong Kong

I/We acknowledge that my/our Securities that are foreign listed Securities and are outside Hong Kong are subject to applicable laws and regulations of the relevant overseas jurisdiction that may be different from the Securities and Futures Ordinance and the rules made thereunder in Hong Kong. Consequently, my/our Securities may not enjoy the same position as that conferred on Securities received or held in Hong Kong.

39. Risk of Providing an Authority to Lend or Deposit Securities with Third Parties

There is risk if I/we provide the Bank or its Agent with an authority that allows the Bank or its Agent to lend my/our Securities to or deposit them with certain third parties under Decree-Law no. 83/99/M, Decree-Law no. 32/93/M and any other applicable law, regulation or guideline in effect in Macau, from time to time and/or the Securities and Futures (Client Securities) Rules or the Securities and Futures Ordinance (Cap.571). This is allowed only if I/we consent in writing and which must not exceed 12 months. I/We understand that I/we am not/are not required by law to sign these authorities. If I/we sign one of these authorities and my/our Securities are lent to or deposited with third parties, those third parties will have a lien or charge on my/our securities. Although the Bank and/or its Agent is/are responsible to me/us for my/our Securities lent or deposited under the authority, a default by the Bank or its Agent could result in the loss of my/our Securities. I/We further understand that if I/we do not require margin facilities or do not wish my/our Securities to be lent or pledged, I/we do not have to sign such authorities.

40. RISKS OF TRADING RENMINBI SECURITIES OR INVESTING IN RENMINBI INVESTMENTS

Exchange risks and Daily Conversion Limit, etc.

RMB is currently not freely convertible and there may at any given time be limited availability of RMB outside Mainland China. There is conversion risk in RMB denominated securities, and daily or other limits may apply to conversion amounts. If converting to or from RMB in Macau, I/we may have to allow sufficient time to avoid exceeding such limits. In addition, there is a liquidity risk associated with RMB denominated securities, especially if such securities do not have an active secondary market and their prices have large bid/offer spreads.

Investment in RMB denominated securities is subject to exchange rate risks. The value of the RMB against any other foreign currencies fluctuates and is affected by changes in Mainland China and international political and economic conditions and by many other factors. The value of RMB settlement amounts compared to other currencies will vary with the prevailing exchange rates in the market.

For RMB products which are not denominated in RMB or with underlying investments which are not RMB-denominated, such products will be subject to multiple currency conversion costs involved in making investments and liquidating investments, as well as the RMB exchange rate fluctuations and bid/offer spreads when assets are sold to meet redemption requests and other capital requirements (e.g. settling operating expenses).

Limited availability of underlying investments denominated in RMB

For RMB products that do not have access to invest directly in Mainland China, their available choice of underlying investments denominated in RMB outside Mainland China may be limited. Such limitation may adversely affect the return and performance of the RMB products.

Projected returns which are not guaranteed

If the RMB investment product is attached with a statement of illustrative return which is (partly) not guaranteed, I/we should pay particular attention to any disclosure relating to the return (or the part of the return, as the case may be) which is not guaranteed and the assumptions on which the illustrations are based, including, e.g., any future bonus or dividend declaration.

Long term commitment to investment products

For RMB products which involve a long period of investment, I/we should pay particular attention to the fact that if he redeems the investment before the maturity date or during the lock-up period (if applicable), I/we may incur a significant loss of principal where the proceeds may be substantially lower than the invested amount. I/We should beware of the early surrender/withdrawal fees and charges, if any, as well as the loss of bonuses (where applicable) as a result of redemption before the maturity date or during the lock-up period.

Credit risk of counterparties

I/We should pay particular attention to the credit risk of counterparties involved in the RMB products. To the extent that the RMB products may invest in RMB debt instruments not supported by any collateral, such products are fully exposed to the credit risk of the relevant counterparties. Where a RMB product may invest in derivative instruments, counterparty risk may also arise as the default by the derivative issuers may adversely affect the performance of the RMB product and result in substantial loss.

Interest rate risk

For RMB products which are, or may invest in, RMB debt instruments, I/we should pay attention to the fact that such instruments may be susceptible to interest rate fluctuations, which may adversely affect the return and performance of the RMB products.

Liquidity Risk

I/We should pay attention to the liquidity risk associated with the RMB products, and where applicable, the possibility that the RMB products may suffer significant losses in liquidating the underlying investments, especially if such investments do not have an active secondary market and their prices have large bid/offer spreads.

Possibility of not receiving RMB upon redemption

For RMB products with a significant portion of non-RMB denominated underlying investments, I/we should pay attention to the possibility of not receiving the full amount in RMB upon redemption. This may be the case if the issuer is not able to obtain sufficient amount of RMB in a timely manner due to the exchange controls and restrictions applicable to the currency.

Additional risks associated with leveraged trading

Prior to conducting leveraged trading of RMB products, I/we should make sure that I/we understand and accept the risks and the terms and conditions of the borrowing arrangement. Leveraging heightens the investment risk by magnifying prospective losses. I/We should pay attention to the circumstances under which I/we will be required to place additional margin deposits at short notice and that my/our collateral may be liquidated without my/our consent. I/We should beware of the risk that market conditions may make it impossible to execute contingent orders, such as "stop-loss" orders. In addition, I/we should be mindful of the exposure to interest rate risk, and in particular, the cost of borrowing may increase due to interest rate movements.

41. Further Risk Disclosure Statement

- 41.1 Liquidation may not be possible Under certain market conditions, I/we may find it difficult or impossible to liquidate a position. This can occur, for example, when the market makes a "limit move" or trading is suspended by the relevant exchange. In addition, there may not be a ready market for certain investments and market traders may not be prepared to deal in certain investments. Some investments may have to be held till/on maturity, for instance, some equity linked notes or index options can only be exercised on the expiry date, whilst other investments may be exercised at any time before expiry. Proper information for determining the value of certain investments may not be available.
- 41.2 Issuer or Counter-party Risks If the issuer of any securities, or other instrument or a trading counter-party becomes unable to meet its obligations then such investments may become worthless and any trading costs and profits irrecoverable.
- 41.3 Country Risks If an investment is made in any asset issued by a party subject to foreign laws, recovery of the sums invested and any profits or gains may be delayed or prevented by exchange controls, debt moratorium or other actions imposed by the government or other official bodies.
- 41.4 Currency Risks Where trading contracts or other investments are denominated in currencies other than my/our primary reference currency, or where my/our converted funds from another currency upon making an investment, there is the risk that if the foreign exchange markets move against me/us, then upon maturity or any earlier dealing the net proceeds converted into my/our primary reference currency, or the currency from which the initial funds were converted (as the case may be), may be significantly less than the equivalent figure on the date of the contract entered into or the investment made, and that any income or gains made may be entirely negated.
- 41.5 Off-Exchange Transactions Transactions may be traded off-exchange or on an over-the-counter basis. Non-exchange traded or "non-transferable" instruments may not be readily realized and are not regulated by the rules of any exchange. Situations may arise where no market traders are prepared to deal in them or no proper information may be available to determine their value. Sometimes it may not be possible to obtain a price quotation. Minimum transaction amounts may be imposed and/or changed by traders from time to time.
- 41.6 Taxation Income or profit from trading in any investments may be subject to withholding tax or capital gains tax or other tax of the country of the issuer or the country in which such investments are traded. In such event, unless the issuer agrees to gross-up the income or profit received by me/us, I/We will only receive the interest payment or proceeds of sale or redemption of the investment less the withholding tax or capital gains tax or other tax.
- 41.7 Bank has no obligation to make price The Bank has no obligation to make price to me/us if my/our favorable price level cannot be obtained or there is no buyer in the market, nor to buy back any Securities or other investment from me/us unless the Bank has written an option requiring it to do so in certain circumstances.
- 41.8 Pre-mature dealings Market movements are unpredictable and unless the debt instrument is held to maturity, I/we may not be possible to realize the debt instruments either at a reasonable price or at all.
- 41.9 Limited rights of action I/We should have no direct right of action against the issuer, drawer/payer, endorser or guarantor or any other related party of the debt instrument upon any default of any such party.
- 41.10 Liability only to account for what is received The Bank's obligation to pay any principal or other amount to me/us on maturity will only arise if, and to the extent that, payment of principal or such other amount is actually received by the Bank from or on behalf of the issuer of the debt instrument.
- 41.11 Hold Mail or Direct Mail to Third Party If I/we provide the Bank with an authority to hold mail or to direct mail to third parties, it is important for me/us to promptly collect in person all contract notes and statements of my/our Account and review them in detail to ensure that any anomalies or mistakes can be detected in a timely fashion.

41.12 Own Investment Decision I/We confirm that my/our decision to make the investment is based on my/our own judgment. I/we have not received any assurances concerning the expected net returns on the investment. If we are an Institutional Professional Investor or a Corporate Professional Investor, we confirm that our decision is made without relying upon any communication (written or oral) of the Bank as investment advice or recommendation to place the investment.

41.13 Independent advice If I/we am/are in any doubt on the risks involved in any trading or investment arrangements or I/we am/are uncertain of or have not understood any aspect of Risk Disclosure Statement, I/we should seek independent professional advice.

41A. China Connect Service-Investing in Shanghai–Hong Kong Stock Connect or Shenzhen–Hong Kong Stock Connect Northbound Trading Service

All orders submitted to or executed on the Shanghai Stock Exchange (“SSE”) or Shenzhen Stock Exchange (“SZSE”) through the Northbound Trading Service will be subject to the rules and procedures of the relevant exchanges and the applicable law and regulations of Mainland China.

Key risks

(1) Not protected by Investor Compensation Fund

I/We note that any Northbound or Southbound trading under Shanghai-Hong Kong Stock Connect and Shenzhen-Hong Kong Stock Connect will not be covered by Hong Kong’s Investor Compensation Fund. As far as Hong Kong / Macau investors participating in Northbound trading are concerned, since I/we am/are carrying out Northbound trading through securities brokers in Hong Kong/Macau and these brokers are not Mainland brokers, therefore I/we am/are not protected by China Securities Investor Protection Fund in the Mainland.

(2) Quotas used up

Once the daily quota is used up for Northbound trading, acceptance of the corresponding buy orders will also be immediately suspended and no further buy orders will be accepted for the remainder of the day. Buy orders which have been accepted will not be affected by the using up of the daily quota, while sell orders will be continued to be accepted. Buying services will be resumed on the following trading day.

(3) Differences in trading day

Shanghai-Hong Kong Stock Connect and Shenzhen-Hong Kong Stock Connect will only operate on days when both the Hong Kong market and the relevant Mainland market are open for trading and when banks in both Hong Kong and Mainland markets are open on the corresponding settlement days. So it is possible that there are occasions when it is a normal trading day for the Mainland market but Hong Kong /Macau investors cannot carry out any A-share trading. I/We take note of the days Shanghai-Hong Kong Stock Connect and Shenzhen-Hong Kong Stock Connect are open for business and decide according to my/our own risk tolerance capability whether or not to take on the risk of price fluctuations in A-shares during the time when Shanghai-Hong Kong Stock Connect or Shenzhen-Hong Kong Stock Connect is not trading.

(4) Restrictions on selling imposed by front-end monitoring

If I/we keep my/our A-shares outside of the designated broker of the Bank and want to sell certain A-shares I/we hold, I/we must transfer those A-shares to the respective accounts of the designated broker of the Bank before the market opens on the day of selling (T day). If I/we fail to meet this deadline, I/we will not be able to sell those A-shares on T day.

(5) The recalling of eligible shares

When a share is recalled from the scope of eligible shares for trading via Shanghai-Hong Kong Stock Connect or Shenzhen-Hong Kong Stock Connect, the share can only be sold but restricted from being bought. This may affect my/our investment portfolio or strategies. I/We should therefore pay close attention to the list of eligible shares as provided and renewed from time to time by SSE, SZSE and The Stock Exchange of Hong Kong Limited.

(6) Restrictions on day trading

Day trading is not allowed for Mainland A shares market. If I/we buy SSE or SZSE Securities on T day, I/we can only sell the shares on and after T+1.

(7) No manual trade or block trade

All trading must be conducted on SSE or SZSE, no manual trade facility or block trade facility are allowed.

(8) Short selling

Naked short selling is not allowed. However, covered short selling of SSE or SZSE Securities which are eligible for both buy orders and sell orders through Northbound trading will be allowed subject to a number of requirements set by SSE or SZSE respectively.

(9) Short-swing profit

Under Mainland China's Securities Law, if I/we hold 5% or more shares of a listed issuer and sells (or buys) shares and make a profit (a 'short-swing profit') within 6 months of the acquisition (or sale), I/we shall be required to disgorge the profit made from such sale (or purchase).

(10) Orders cancellation under contingency

The Bank shall have right to cancel my/our orders in case of contingency such as hoisting of Typhoon Signal No 8 in Hong Kong / Macau.

The Bank may not be able to send in my/our order cancellation requests in case of contingency such as when SEHK loses all its communication lines with SSE or SZSE, etc and I/we should still bear the settlement obligations if the orders are matched and executed.

(11) Account information of beneficial owner

The Bank have right to disclose my/our identity to SEHK which may on-forward to SSE or SZSE for surveillance and investigation purposes. Besides, SSE or SZSE has the power to require the Bank to assist in its investigation.

(12) Currency risks

Northbound trading will be traded and settled in RMB. If I/we am/are a non-mainland PRC investor who holds a local currency other than RMB, I/we will be exposed to currency risk due to the need for the conversion of the local currency into RMB. During the conversion, I/we will also incur currency conversion costs. Even if the price of the RMB asset remains the same when I/we purchase it and when I/we redeem / sell it, I/we will still incur a loss when I/we convert the redemption / sale proceeds into local currency if RMB has depreciated.

(13) Amendments to the Terms and Conditions of Investment Account

In "Schedule V : China Connect Service" of the Terms and Condition of Investment Account containing specific terms and conditions governing transactions of trading securities through the China Connect Service, the Bank shall have the right to suspend, restrict or terminate the China Connect Service, force me/us to sell any Securities, or request me/us to disgorge any profit or unwind any Transactions upon request by the SSE, SZSE or other Exchanges or in accordance with the Relevant Rules, without prejudice to all other rights the Bank may have.

Please be informed that the above may not cover all risks related to Shanghai-Hong Kong Stock Connect and Shenzhen-Hong Kong Stock Connect and any above mentioned laws, rules and regulations are subject to change.

If there is any inconsistency or conflict between the English and Chinese versions, the English version shall prevail.

Without prejudice to all other rights the Bank may have, the Customer irrevocably authorises the Bank, without reference to the Customer, to sell or arrange for the sale of the Securities on the Customer's behalf at such price and on such terms as the Bank may determine at the Bank's absolute discretion and/or to debit the profits and all relevant fees, charges, costs and expenses from any of the Accounts for the compliance of any request or instruction from the Exchanges and the relevant regulators in relation to the forced-sale and/or request for disgorgement of profit.

The Customer understands that the Exchanges may without notice suspend short selling activities at any time and the list of eligible Securities for short selling may be changed from time to time. Notwithstanding the aforesaid, the Bank shall be entitled to refuse to accept or give effect to any short sell order at any time without any liability to the Customer.

58. No Liabilities

- 58.1 To the maximum extent permitted by applicable law and not inconsistent with the applicable obligations of the Bank under the Code in respect of the Services provided under these Terms and Conditions, subject to Clause 2.8 (if applicable), except to the extent directly due to the negligence or wilful misconduct of the Bank, the Bank, its directors, employees and agents shall not be responsible or held liable for any losses or damages directly or indirectly suffered by the Customer arising from or in connection with any trading of Securities via the China Connect Service including without limitation the following:
